

REMEMBRANCE SUNDAY 2025

Local groups at the Remembrance parade

Ref: 46-1725Y Soldiers on parade

Ref: 46-1725N

The parade makes its way through the town

Ref: 46-1725O

Thatcham turns out to honour fallen heroes

By MADISON ROLFE
madison.rolfe@newburynews.co.uk

HUNDREDS of people attended Thatcham's service for Remembrance on Sunday.

Thatcham's annual event had hundreds of parade participants taking part and many local residents paying their respects.

The service started at 10.30am from the Kingsland Centre car park, looping around Thatcham Broadway and up the High Street to the war memorial.

Many walked in the parade, including army members and scouts.

Thatcham mayor Petra Pemberton, Reverend Mark Bennet and the Royal British Legion led the service at the war memorial.

After the main wreath laying, members of the public were invited to lay their own tributes.

Mrs Pemberton paid her respects by laying a wreath at the memorial.

The parade service was well attended as well as the service at St Mary's Church which followed.

The parade took place from the Broadway and High Street from 10.30am and then made its way to the Parade Ground for the service at 11am.

Paying respect at the war memorial

Ref: 46-1725AG

Youngsters at the parade

Ref: 46-1725C

Local Guides joined the procession

Ref: 46-1725AA

Thatcham mayor Petra Pemberton and deputy Lieutenant of Berkshire Willie Hartley Russell

Ref: 46-1725G

Marching through the town

Ref: 46-1725AJ